METCALF GENEALOGY.

There has been much speculation about the origin of the name Metcalf. The original seat of the family was in the North and Northwest part of Yorkshire, in England. The name is found in the old records spelled variously: Metkalff, Medcalf, Mydcalfe, Medcalf, Medecalfe, Meitcalve, Medecafe, Metecalfe, and many others.

The name is still a very common one in Yorkshire, where it was, and is yet sometimes pronounced "Mecca." The traditions are that the early Metcalfs were as a race unusually large, strong men. There is a familiar story of the strong-armed hero who twisted the neck of a ferocious bull, and reported that he and so was called the Man who Met a Calf, or the Metcalf. In later times, Rev. B. E. Metcalf, Rector of Ferrybridge, Yorkshire, writes that he knew in Mukar, Craven, Yorkshire, eight families of Metcalfs, one a father and seven sons, and all very large men, over six feet tall.

Craven is an old Metcalf district in Yorkshire. Whittaker's "History of Craven" derives the name Metcalf from the old Saxon "Mechalgh," halgh meaning a tract of land and Mechalgh, the Men of Mec's land.

Another derivation is perhaps more probable. There are in Craven, twelve miles southeast of Dent, three hills, or a small mountain with three peaks, now called the Pennegent hills, but long known as the Three Calves.

A. D. 1278 (Edward I.) it is recorded that Adam de Medekalf, that is Adam of the Middle Calf, was killed by one Steynebrigge in single combat. The prefix Mede is derived from the German Mitte, Saxon Midd, English Middle. This Adam of Metcalf in 1278, was the eighth in descent from the original Dane Arkefrith, who came to England in 1016 with King Canute, who gave him lands in Northwest Yorkshire, and made him "Lord of Dent, Sedburg and Askrigg," names still to be found on the maps of Yorkshire.

It is said that this Danish succession can be traced in an unbroken line from Arkefrith to the present time. William Mainrod Metcalf, Esq., of York, England, born in 1839, claims to be the 39th in regular descent from Arkefrith, as follows:

1. Arkefrith.
2. Arkell, Lord of Dent, etc. (Doomsday Book of Edward the Confessor).
3. Gospatrick.
4. Dolfin.
5. William.
6. Richard.
7. Adam, 1252.
8. Adam, 1278. Called Medecalfe.
9. Adam. Medecalfe of Baynbridge.
10. Adam. Medecalfe of Thornton.
11. Richard. Metcalf of Baynbridge.
12. Thomas. Metcalf of Baynbridge.
13. John Metcalf, married Alice of Ireby.
14. James Metcalf, of Nappa, in Wensleydale, married Gelsone of Ireby, was Captain at the battle of Agincourt, under Henry V., in 1415, and was Lord of the Manor of Nappa when Margaret, widow of Richard, Lord Scrofe, claimed dower in said Manor. But in 1472, the widow of Lord Scrofe released to James Metcalf and heirs all claims. In 1439 he is described as of Nappay under the Skar, in Ayegarth. In 1459 as of Wensleydale, York. This James Metcalf founded and endowed the Chantry of St. Anne at Askrigg; requiring daily Mass said and prayers offered for the good estate of the King and Queen, of himself and his sons, and for their souls when from this life they pass away, and for the souls of all his benefactors, and all the faithful departed. In this chapel of St. Anne is still (1880) to be seen a marble slab, which has evidently been defaced, and the inscriptions, carvings, sculptures, and ornaments of brass torn off. This, it is said, was done by the "Roundheads" in the time of Cromwell.

This James Metcalf's children were Reginald, who married a Thornton of Thornton; Brian; Myles, who was in Parliament from York, in 1478; Thomas, who was Chancellor of the Kingdom under Edward IV. and Richard III.; Joan, who married Marmaduke, Constable of Cliff; and Cicely, who died in 1502, Prioress of Marrich Abbey, in Iraledale, Priory of St. Andrew, Marrich.

On account of their adherence to the house of York, and Richard III., Myles Metcalf, the Recorder, and his brother, the Chancellor, were expressly excepted from the pardon granted in 1485, by Henry VII. But they were afterwards pardoned and restored to office. Myles Metcalf died Feb. 25, 1494, and was buried in the Minster of York. There was a brass tablet in the Minster of York with the inscription:

"+ Hic jacet Mils Metcalf, quondam recordator istius civitatis, ac etiam sinus justiciarius dom. regis apud Lancaster, qui obiit XXV die mensis Februarii, ann. Dom. 1494. Cujus anime propitietus Deus. Amen."

These Yorkshire Metcalfs were always very zealous Catholics. Bryan Metcalf of Beare Park, Wensleydale, was the Bryan of Beare, champion, in the story of the Felon Sow of Rokeby, according to Whittaker's History and Sir Walter Scott's "Rokeby." Beare Park, Marrich, Wensleydale, was long a residence of the Metcalfs till it was confiscated in 1543, under Henry VIII's suppression of Monasteries.

Thomas Metcalf, the other brother, was Privy Councilor in 1460, under Henry VI., and Chancellor of Lancaster, under Richard III.

This Thomas Metcalf was described in Leland's Chronicles "a great officer as steward, survier, or receyver of landes whereby he waxed riche, and did builde and purchace. He made additions to Nappay Hall, in which two toures be very fair, besides other logginges." He adds that "Knappey and other places thereabout be able make a three hundred men in very knownen consanquinitie of the Metecalfes."

15. This Thomas Metcalf with his brothers Myles, Reginald and Bryan, with Joan, wife of Marmaduke, and Cicely the Prioress, are called the fifteenth (15th) generation from the old Dane Arkefrith.

33. William Metcalf, who married Anne Mainwood, May 21, 1657, is called the thirty-third from Arkefrith.

39. William Mainwood Metcalf, of York, England, born in 1839, claims to be the 39th from Arkefrith.

But our American Metcalfs are descended from Brian, of Beare Park, the third son of James Metcalf of Nappay, who married Johanna, of Boughton. Their sons were Richard, Leonard, Nicholas and Roger. Leonard married a Thursby, and left children Leonard, Vincent, Godfrey, and Ambrose.

Leonard Metcalf, of Beare Park, in 1569 joined the Rising in the North, in the interest of Mary, Queen of Scots. He was condemned and attainted and narrowly escaped the scaffold. His name is first in the list of "Gentlemen prisoners at Carlisle, Dec., 1569." His name is in the list of prisoners taken to Durham Castle, January, 1570. Eleven of them were indicted for "Conspiracy of Treason and Rebellion," and all were condemned to die. Four were executed at once at York. The other seven were "Stayed for the second execution," or until the Queen's pleasure; and it was represented to the Queen that Leonard Metcalf rose because the Earl of Northumberland did, and also that he had made state of his lands to his wife, so that by his life the Queen should have his lands, while by his death his wife should have them, so that the Queen should win by his life and lose by his death; and further that he had been taken for a very quiet, honest gentleman, and that he was generally lamented. The Queen's reply expressed her willingness to spare the lives of three, but "for the four, Metcalf, Lambert, Claxton and Conyers, we thynk it good that some furder example be showed and we refer the same to your own judgment." But the Commissioners did not accept the discretion thus given them; and April 5, the Earl of Sussex wrote to Secretary Cecil, that the Queen "wanted some furder example of ye better sorte," and that "Metcalf, Lambert, Claxton and Conyers ought to be executed." But finally none of them were executed, probably for the sake of "ye landes." The Bill of Attainder names "Leonard Metcalfe, late of Beare Park, Co. York, Esquire."

The "coat of arms" of these old Yorkshire Metcalfs was everywhere, "Argent, three calves, passant sable," with different quarterings in different branches of the family.

Our emigrant ancestor, Michael Metcalf, the Dornix or Embroidery Weaver, of Norwich, and the Metcalfs of Norwich, Tatterford and vicinity, in Norfolk county, were immediately descended from the Metcalfs of Beare Park and Nappa Hall in Northern Yorkshire. The Yorkshire Metcalfs, as far as known, were zealous Catholics; the Norfolk family were zealous Protestants, and Michael, at least, a staunch Puritan. When Leonard Metcalf was attainted for high treason, and lost his large estates in Yorkshire (which it is hinted may have been one reason for his condemnation, his lands being wanted for some new court favorite), his family left Yorkshire and settled in Norfolk. Religion was then largely a matter of politics. It is supposed that Leonard Metcalf himself, perhaps as a condition of his pardon, gave up his Catholicism, and after the loss of his property, eventually took holy orders under the state church, and twenty years after was the first Leonard Metcalf, Rector of the parish of Tatterford near Norwich. But it is perhaps more probable that this first Rector Metcalf of Tatterford was the son of Leonard Metcalf, the quondam traitor.

The earliest records extant of the parish of Tatterford, are copies in the registry of the Archdeaconry of Norfolk, and commence about 1560. In 1580, et sequens, Leonard Metcalf was Rector of the Parish of Tatterford. Leonard Metcalf was succeeded by Richard Metcalf. In these records the name is spelled Metcalf, Metcalfe, Mettcalf and Mettcalfe. In 1585 is the entry of baptism of "Leonardus Metcalf, filius Leonardi Metcalf et Bapt fuit 3d die Septembris." Again, "Michael Metcalf filius Leonardi Metcalf et bapt fuit 17th die June 1587." Which confirms our records that Michael Metcalf, the Dornix Weaver, was born at Tatterford, Norfolk Co., June 17, 1587. There is no clue to the name of Leonard Metcalf's wife, the mother of Michael.

Michael Metcalf's wife, Sarah Ellwyn, was born, our old records in this country say, "June 17, 1593, in the adjoining town of Waynham." The adjoining town is Raynham, with parishes East, West, and South Raynham. And there has been quite a controversy over the name. The registers of all have been searched for the record of Sarah Ellwyn's birth and marriage. But further investigation has shown that Sarah Ellwyn was born in "Heigham," the daughter of Thomas and Elisabeth Ellwyn. Thomas Ellwyn was born in 1564 and died in 1648. Sarah Ellwyn was born in Heigham, June 17, 1593, and was married to Michael Metcalf Oct. 13, 1616. Their seven oldest children were born and baptised in St. Benedict's, Norwich, Norfolk Co., and four younger children at St. Edmondsbury.

Michael Metcalf was made a Freeman of the city of Norwich, June 21, 1618. His occupation is stated as "Dornix Weaver." This Dornic or Dornix was a kind of Damask or tapestry used for hangings or heavy curtains. And Michael Metcalf is supposed to have employed some hundred or more men in his shop or factory.

But he was a very zealous non-conformist, and became involved in a controversy with his Bishop. Matthew Wren, previously Bishop of Hereford, afterwards of Ely, was then Bishop of Norwich, and was very bitter, notorious, some writers say, in his persecutions of the Puritans, or of any who refused to conform. But in about twenty years all this was changed in England. Cromwell and the Independents or Puritans were in the ascendancy; and Wren, then Bishop of Ely, was tried before a committee of Parliament for his abuse of the Puritans. In "Howell's State Trials," Vol. 4, page 33, of the 21 volume edition of 1816, one of the twenty-five Articles of Impeachment presented July 5, 1641, by Sir Thomas Waddington, member for Berwick, to the House of Commons, against Matthew Wren, late Bishop of Norwich and then Bishop of Ely, is the following:

“ Art. XVI. That by means of the vigorous prosecutions and dealings in the precedent articles mentioned, and by reason of the superstitious bowing to, and afore the Table set Altarwise, the suspending, silencing, driving away of the faithful preaching Ministers, the suppressing and forbidding of sermons and prayers, the putting down of lectures, the suppressing means of knowledge and salvation, and introducing ignorance, superstition and profaneness, many of his majesty’s subjects, to the number of three thousand, many of which used trades, spinning, weaving, knitting, and making of cloth, stuffs, stockings and other manufactures of wool,—that is to say Daniel Sonning, Michael Metcalf, John Besant, Nicholas Metcalf, — Busby, John Derant, Widow Maxes, Richard Cook, John Dicke, Francis Laws, John Sentry, and many others, some of them setting a hundred poor people to work, have removed themselves, their families and estates, into Holland and other partes beyond the seas, and there set-up and taught the natives the said manufactures, to the great hinderance of trade in this kingdom, and to the impoverishing and bringing to extreme want of very many who were by these parties set on work, to the great prejudice of his Majesty, and of his people.”

The defence of Bishop Wren introduced the recorded testimony of a Mr. Disployn, and of Messrs. With — father and son — of Cossay, who testified that “ Michael and Nicholas Metcalf had uttered dangerous words against the King which could not longer be endured, and also that the said Michael slippit away and went to New England.”

Michael Metcalf’s own account was as follows, as taken from the N. E. Genealogical Register, Vol. 6, page 171:

“ I was persecuted in the land of my fathers’ sepulchres for not bowing at the name of Jesus and observing the ceremonies inforced upon me at the instance of Bishop Wren of Norwich, and his Chancellor Dr. Corbet, whose violent measures troubled me in the Bishop’s court, and returned me into the High Commissioner’s Court.

“ Suffering many times for the cause of religion, I was forced for the sake of the liberty of my conscience to flee from my wife and children to go into New England; taking ship for the voyage at London, 17th Sept., 1636, and being by tempests tossed up and down the seas till the Christmas following; and then veering about to Plymouth in Old England. Leaving the ship I went down to Yarmouth, in Co. Norfolk, whence I finally shipped myself and family to come to New England; sailed April 15, 1637, and arrived three days before Midsummer with my wife, nine children, and a servant, Thomas Comberbach, aged 16.”

The passenger list of emigrants with the “ John and Dorothy,” Master Wm. Andrews of Ipswich, as examined April 8, 1637, includes Michael Metcalf and Sarah Metcalf, his wife, and eight children. It is probable that his second son, Joseph Metcalf, came to this country two years before his father, and was admitted a freeman at Dedham, March 4, 1635. Michael himself was admitted a freeman at Dedham, July 14, 1637.

The following letter was written before he made his first attempt to come to America. At the time of his writing he speaks of himself as an exile from his wife and children, “ with whom he would have gladly continued if with liberty: ”

“ To all the true professors of Christ’s Gospel within the City of Norwich:

“ The peace of God in Jesus Christ, the help, comfort and assistance of his Eternal Spirit be with you, my dear and loving wife, and all the rest of our loving friends, professors of Christ’s Gospel and true religion, most purely taught and powerfully preached amongst you not long since, who now mourn for the miseries of God’s people, and loss of your faithful minister, to your everlasting consolation in him — Amen.

“ Our adversary the devil, as a mighty Nimrod and cunning hunter, doth continually compass the earth to and fro like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour, ruling in the hearts of children of disobedience, stirring them up against the people of God. You know there ever hath been enmity between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent; for as he that was born after the flesh persecuted him that was born after the spirit, Gal. 4:29, even so it is now, for are there not beasts among you, after the manner of men, such as Paul fought with at Ephesus? Yea, surely I would they were cut off which trouble you. Persecutors they are of you, my friends, in the Apostle’s phrase, alluding to Gen. 21:9. There you shall find Ishmael mocking and troubling of Isaac for his religion, called persecution by the Apostle Paul. And are there not such a scoffing generation of Ishmaelites among you, who hate you because you hate the thing that is good, and will not run with them into all excess of riots, and with their tongues do shout at them that are true of heart (as the prophet saith). He saith further, in the person of the church, that they that sit in the gates spake against me, and I was a song of the drunkard, for the just man is laughed to scorn (Job 12:4). The wicked watcheth the righteous man and seeketh to slay him (Psalm 37). I would wish that this viperous generation did not multiply in your city as they do. Among them are scoffing Ishmaelites, prophane Esaus, flattering dogs, subtile Ahithophels, children of this world, wiser in their generation than the children of light, but in the end will prove to be Solomon's fools.

“ When I was among them I tasted of their burning charity, when some of them conspired against my life, as you know, accusing me Treason most unjustly. Some of my adversaries were at difference one with another, yet like Pilate and Herod, they became friends, and joined madness and malice against me. But God, who hated their conspiracy, so mollified the heart of one of the witnesses, that with tears she confessed I never spake any such words. Their malice being manifest to the world, their project was laid in the dust. Yet herewith not satisfied, they sent out their bloodhounds abroad, to smell out some new matter against me; but my God bounded their madness, and by death took away one of my chiefest enemies (Job 4:7).

“ My cause may well allude to the Prophet David's complaint against his enemies; saith he: ‘ My enemies spake against me, and they that lay wait for my life take counsel together, but the Lord hath delivered me out of the hand of the wicked, from the unrighteous and evil man.’ To God I have referred my cause, to whom I leave it and them.

“ You are not ignorant, I suppose, of the great trouble I sustained in the Archdeacon's and Bishop's Court, at the hands of my enemies, concerning the matter of bowing, as well as for other matters of like consequence. I alleged against them the scripture, the canons, and the book of common prayer, but the Chancellor replied he cared for none of them. I further alleged against them the authority of Archbishops and Bishops, as also their great patron of Ceremonies, the learned Hooker, so called by them; together with a book called the Regiment of the Church, allowed by authority, which hath these words: 'That the decrees and constitution of the Church of England must not be made a part of God's worship, neither holden necessary to our salvation, as some have vainly in some of your hearings; for our Savior saith 'in vain do they worship me who teach for doctrines the precepts of men.' The Apostle condemneth all voluntary worship devised by men. Hooker after saith 'Our church doth not enforce bowing at the name of Jesus against his conscience.'

" Notwithstanding these and more than these reasons alleged against them, their learned and invincible arguments to refute my assertions were these: 'Blockhead, old heretick, the devil made you, I will send you to the devil;' with other such twin stuff, unfitting terms to be used by a Judge in a court of Judicature. But of these, no more, for these words were not spoken in a corner but in a consistory.

" My loving friends, be not discouraged too much at innovations, now forced upon you, but never heretofore urged upon any man's conscience by any Bishop of the See of Norwich, since the Reformation; but as the proverb says 'New lords, new laws.' Such doings make sad the hearts of God's people. Let your faith and patience have their perfect work in these perilous times, now come upon you, by the sufferance of God.

" Be you cheerly. God is on your side, and his truth is your cause, and against you be none but the enemies of the cross of Christ, the serpent and his seed, the Ishmaelites and prophane Esaus of this wicked world, children of the malignant church, such as the Lord hath always abhorred and in all ages resisted and overthrown. God from whom nothing is hid knoweth what they are. He hath found out your enemies to be prophane, malicious, proud, disdainful, filthy, shameless, persecutors of and despiteful against his people and truth. The spirit of God doth describe them in the Scripture by the names of serpents, lions, dogs, bulls, bears, wolves, swine, beasts, &c.; teaching us to understand that their natural inclination is, as much as in them lieth, to bring into trouble and bonds all those who live godly in Christ; but the Lord, with his right arm, will defend his little distressed flock against his and your enemies who do conspire against your precious faith and liberty. In the meantime, my friends, have patience while they rage; let them curse, ban, rage and become mad against you, casting the dirt of aspersion at your faces, not hating you for your vices, but for your virtues — Cain like; and had they power with their will, surely they would cast fire and fagot at your faces. These Jehus, I do hope, march too furious to hold out long. They may haply prove but summer birds. The Lord hath bounded their madness that they shall not do more to you than he will suffer them to do. God doth try his people in the furnace of affliction, and he that sufferereth patiently for his Christian profession is hereby known to be of Christ; even so are the persecutors and opposers of God's people known to be enemies of the cross of Christ. Besides, their injustice may be the means the sooner to provoke the Lord to take pity on you, and to punish them that so despitefully use you; for though God suffer them for a time, in their pride, yet shall they not always escape his avenging hand. They are his rods, and when he hath worn them to the stumps, then will he cast them forth into the fire. This shall be their final reward. Your duty is in the mean while patiently to abide the will of God, who worketh all things for the best for you.

“ Oh Norwich! the beauty of my native country! what shall I say unto thee? Thou art little inferior to any of thy sister cities within this kingdom. Famous hast thou been for religion throughout this island. The Gospel of Christ Jesus hath been purely and powerfully taught, to thy great honor, and ye joy and rejoicing of thy religious inhabitants. Thy God hath adorned thee with such a succession of godly and able preachers, within some of thy churches, that few congregations, I suppose, have had the like; who so faithfully have taught their people, both by life and doctrine, to your everlasting fame; carefully preaching and defending the doctrine of justification by faith in Christ, with other truths of the true Protestant faith, against the defenders of the stinking tenets of Arminius, that enemy of God, so called by King James, i. e., ye 1st.

“ Also my friends, what comfort is it now to you to learn what your city hath formerly been for Christ’s true religion taught in her? The question, what is she now? Surely much relapsed and fallen from her love and purity of life and doctrine. Would to God thy spiritual fathers had not tasted the sour grapes whereby most of the children’s teeth are set on edge. For many strange things are now preached in thine ears by thy new preachers which your old preachers would never have endured. But the religion of these novelists consisteth in formalities, they striving to use the desk above the pulpit, teaching the people less preaching may now serve, were it not to preach down schism and faction, as at Winsor Visitation. Another he makes it arbitrary whether or not the Pope be Antichrist, as Burgess in my hearing at the Cathedral in Norwich.

“ My friends, beware of them that preach to you with the enticing words of Man’s wisdom, and do chalk out a nearer way to heaven than they shall find, I fear, that walk in it."

MICHAEL METCALF GENEALOGY.

born Jan. 7, 1622). He married 1st, Sept. 12, 1655, Sarah Paige;
2nd, Dec. 2, 1679. Thomas was Deacon at Dedham, and died
Nov. 16, 1702.
9. Ann, (called also Joanne) born March 1, 1631. Died young.
10. Jane, born March 24, 1632. Married Samuel Walker, of Rehoboth.
11. Rebeka, born April 5, 1635. Married April 5, 1659, John Mackintosh, of Dedham.

FIRST GENERATION. MICHAEL METCALF, the "Dornick Weaver" of Norwich, (Dornick, a kind of stuff used for Curtains, Carpets, and Hangings, so called from Doornick or Tournay, a city in Flanders, where it was first made. Phillip's Dec. London, 1706.) Michael Metcalf was admitted a Townsman at Dedham, Mass., July 14, 1637; joined the church January, 1639; was Selectman in 1641. His name stands first on the committee to "Contrive the fabricke of a new meeting house." In 1661, we read of the brickmaking, "one of the principal clay pits being on the land of Michael Metcalf, Dedham Island." His wife, Sarah Elwyn, died Nov. 30, 1644. He married 2nd, Widow Mary Pidge, of Roxbury, Aug. 13, 1645.

Michael Metcalf died Dec. 27, 1664. Will proved and inventory of estate taken Feb. 1, 1665: £364 18s. 5d.

- 12. Ezra, born March 11, 1794; died Sept. 17, 1795.

From this point the record gives, so far as ascertained, the names of the descendants of Isaac Metcalf, and also of the descendants of his three brothers, Peletiah, Jacob, and Enoch.

Peletiah Metcalf, M. D., born at Royalston, Mass., July 29, 1780, fifth child of Peletiah and Lydia Estey Metcalf, married Abigail Hawes, who was born Jan. 26, 1786; settled as a physician in Pawtucket, and Woonsocket, R. I., where he died Oct. 26, 1866. I [I. S. M.] judge that Dr. Peletiah Metcalf kept the duties of kinship better than some of us since. I should think that he, with his family, visited my father every year, coming with his own carriage. After my father's death, and the removal of our family to Northern Maine, I remember once at least his coming with his family to visit us there, driving, I think, all the way in his own carriage. And until his death he wrote regularly every year to my mother or some one of the family. His wife, Abigail Hawes, died Jan. 13, 1871. They had two children:

- 1. Charles Hermon Metcalf, photographer, born Oct. 22, 1822; died unmarried, Sept. 23, 1870.
- 2. Eleanor Amelia Metcalf, born Dec. 26, 1824. She married Nov. 18, 1844, Charles A. Smith, of Woonsocket, R. I., who was born Nov. 4, 1820, and died Feb. 23, 1879. Their three children:

1. Mary Francis Smith, born April 9, 1847.
2. Walter Metcalf Smith, born Nov. 5, 1853. Married Ellen Frances Winsor, Nov. 21, 1877; has five children:
 - Eleanor A. Smith, born Jan. 17, 1879.
 - Charles Metcalf Smith, born July 20, 1881.
 - Ralph Herman Smith, born March 23, 1883.
 - Ruth Abigail Smith, born May 23, 1886.
 - Pauline Winsor Smith, born Sept. 20, 1890.
3. Harry Hawes Smith, born May 5, 1868; married Oct. 19, 1893, to Laura Bell Hough; has one child:
 - Herbert Leslie Smith, born Sept. 2, 1897.

Jacob Metcalf, born at Royalston, Mass., June 7, 1785, seventh child of Peletiah Metcalf and Lydia Estey; married Sept. 15, 1807, Charlotte Prescott, who was born March 12, 1787, and died May 19, 1843. After the death of his first wife, Charlotte Prescott, he married, April 16, 1845, Nancy A. Thomas, of Winchendon, who was born June 16, 1790. She died Sept. 16, 1847. He married his third wife, Mary L. Gay, of Baldwinsville, Aug. 22, 1848. She was born April 23, 1798. He died April 21, 1859, at the old place "Under the Hill," where he was born and had lived all his life. His wife, Mary L. Gay, survived him, dying Feb. 11, 1878. Jacob Metcalf and Charlotte Prescott had four children:

1. Peletiah Metcalf, born May 21, 1808. Was a dry goods clerk and merchant in Boston; married June 19, 1834, Olive Forbes, who was born Nov. 16, 1808, the daughter of James Forbes, of Royalston. He died Sept. 7, 1835, leaving no children.
2. Jonas Prescott Metcalf, second son of Jacob and Charlotte Prescott Metcalf, born at Royalston, May 14, 1810; married Oct. —, 1834, Harriet

Jacobs, who was born Jan. 5, 1816, daughter of John Jacobs, of Royalston. He died Nov. 1, 1843. Their children:

1. George Prescott Metcalf, born June 13, 1837.
2. Harlan Peletiah Metcalf, born April 29, 1839.
3. Martha Harriet Metcalf, born Dec. 6, 1840.
4. Prescott Marius Metcalf, born June 1, 1843.

Harlan Peletiah Metcalf, born at Royalston, April 29, 1839, second son of Jonas Prescott Metcalf and Harriet Jacobs, was married Oct. 4, 1859, to Ellen Maria Pierce, of Royalston, a sister of C. A. Pierce, for 40 years of Westfield, Mass. After the War, Harlan Peletiah, in 1867, left his family, and has not been heard from for years; last in California. Ellen M. Pierce Metcalf died Oct. 13, 1894. Their children:

1. Jacob Frederic Metcalf, born July 31, 1861; died March 8, 1886.
2. Harlan Prescott Metcalf, born Sept. 21, 1862. After his father's desertion, was sent to an orphan asylum in Worcester, Mass., and says he had a hard time for many years, not being found by his mother or any of his relatives till he was grown up. He is now a machinist in Providence, R. I. He married Lillie B. Matteson, and has a daughter, Harlena Lillis, born Sept., 1889.
3. Jessie Murdock Metcalf, third child of Harlan Peletiah and Ellen M. Pierce Metcalf, was born Sept. 27, 1864. After her father's desertion, when three years old, was brought up by her aunt, Martha Harriet Metcalf, the wife of Henry A. Spofford, of Fitzwilliam, N. H. She was married March 30, 1890, to John Jarvis, Jr., of Hudson, Mass. They have two children, John Harlan Jarvis, born Jan. 15, 1893, and Ruth Arlene Jarvis, born March 29, 1897.
4. Ella (or Elvera) Maria Metcalf, born May, 1866, fourth child of Harlan Peletiah and Ellen M. Pierce Metcalf, after her father's desertion, remained with her mother. She married, April, 1884, Oliver Mansford Darling, of North Adams, Mass., and has children:

1. Margaret M., born June, 1885.
2. Gertrude M., born June, 1886.
3. Lillian, born June, 1888; died 1888.
4. Ralph Mansford, born Dec., 1890.

Martha Harriet Metcalf, born Dec. 6, 1840, third child of Jonas Prescott Metcalf and Harriet Jacobs, married Henry A. Spofford, of Fitzwilliam, N. H. They had no children of their own, but adopted Jessie Murdock Metcalf. Mrs. Spofford died Sept. 13, 1895.

Prescott Marius Metcalf, born June 1, 1843, fourth child of Jonas Prescott Metcalf and Harriet Jacobs, after the War settled in Norfolk, Va., where he was connected with the post office for some years, and afterward cashier of a bank. He married there, Sept. 10, 1863, Elvera Rolland, who was born March 11, 1841, of French parentage. He died March 19, 1890. They have had seven children:

1. Henry Prescott Metcalf, born March 6, 1865; married Mary E. Hodges. They have one child, Erla Lee Metcalf, born Dec. 29, 1888.
2. Mary Elvera Metcalf, born Dec. 11, 1866.
3. Claude Reginald Metcalf, born Dec. 28, 1868; married Dec. 5, 1889, Annie E. Davis. He died July 18, 1891. Their two children:

Elvera Prescott Metcalf, born Oct. 18, 1888.

Prescott Reginald Metcalf, born Sept. 23, 1890.

4. Martha Harriet Metcalf, born Nov. 17, 1874.
5. Carrie Louise Metcalf, born Jan. 5, 1877.
6. Arthur Clifton Metcalf, born Sept. 7, 1878.
7. Wilbur Stevens Metcalf, born Nov. 23, 1879.

3. Samuel Gregory Metcalf, third son of Jacob and Charlotte Prescott Metcalf, was born at Royalston, Mass., April 1, 1814, and was for years in partnership with his father in farming and lumber business. He married, in 1844, Catharine Louisa Gale, of Royalston, who died the same year. In 1850 the partnership with his father was dissolved, and he removed to Worcester, Mass. May 20, 1851, he married Sarah King Craddock, who was born May 30, 1821, in Middlebury, Vt., the daughter of Alvin and Sally Craddock. She had been married in 1847 to Rev. J. D. Johnson, of Worcester, Mass., who died five months after. Samuel G. Metcalf and his new wife moved from Worcester to Leroy, N. Y., where their only son, Henry S. Metcalf, was born July 14, 1853. They moved in 1854 to Mt. Carroll, Carroll Co., Ill., where by dealing in real estate S. G. Metcalf became somewhat wealthy, but in 1868 was prostrated by paralysis, the result of sunstroke. He lived almost helpless and a great sufferer for some 14 years, dying Oct. 1, 1882. His only son, Henry S. Metcalf, born July 14, 1853, graduated from Beloit College, in 1879; studied medicine and dentistry, but without trying to practice either. He has engaged in teaching and lecturing some in Mt. Carroll High School, and Beloit College, making a specialty of botany. He is Trustee of Beloit College and President or controlling Trustee of Mt. Carroll Academy; and of late is drawn a good deal into practice as physician.

4. Josiah Kidder Metcalf, fourth and youngest son of Jacob Metcalf and Charlotte Prescott, was born at Royalston, Mass., Aug. 10, 1826. He never married; was a teacher for many years; in 1865 he entered the Christian ministry in the Baptist denomination, where he was very much beloved. His health began to fail in 1877, and he preached his last sermon April of that year, the sixth anniversary of his settlement. He died Jan. 15, 1878. No relative of his was present at his funeral, but his church and Sabbath school were sincere mourners, and the ministers of other denominations took part in the funeral exercises, and acted as pall bearers.

Enoch Metcalf, born Feb. 27, 1792, was the 11th child of Peletiah Metcalf and Lydia Estey. He married Elizabeth Buffum. He died Feb. 17, 1864; she died Feb., 1883. Their five children:

1. Caleb Buffum Metcalf, born Feb. 13, 1814, at Royalston. Studied at Phillips Academy, Andover, under Samuel Taylor; graduated at Yale College in 1842. Married, Aug. 18, 1843, Roxana C. Barnes, sister of A. S. Barnes, the publisher. He taught in Boston four years. Then for ten years the Thomas St. School, in Worcester, Mass., commencing April 16, 1846. In 1856, he established on Salisbury Street, Worcester, his famous Highland Military School, over which he presided for thirty-two years, until 1888; then Superintendent Emeritus. He died July 31, 1891, at Seabright, N. J., the summer home of his daughter. Their two children:

1. Alfred Barnes, born July 6, 1847; died Aug. 19, 1850.
2. Anna Wilson, born Oct. 8, 1849; married, June 4, 1879, to Percy McElrath, of New York City. Consul at Turin, Italy.
2. Sarah Metcalf, born Sept. 3, 1815, married Jan. 28, 1839, Elihu S. Hunt, of Lowell, Mass. She died April 4, 1864. Their four children:
 1. Edward S., born Aug. 3, 1839; died Aug. 12, 1880.
 2. Elizabeth, born Feb. 14, 1841; married Sept. 28, 1868, to Albert G. Cook, of Lowell; died Jan. 13, 1870.
 3. Isaac Metcalf, born April 10, 1843, died July 17, 1844.

4. Sarah Rossetter, born May 24, 1845; now living in Lowell, Mass; married April 21, 1868, to Robert H. Walker, of Chicago. Their daughter, Elizabeth, born July 13, 1869, married Geo. E. Garity, of Lowell.
3. Isaac Newton Metcalf, born at Royalston, March 8, 1818, removed early to Lowell, Mass. Choir boy at Old St. Anne's Church, of Lowell, in 1833, when 15 years old; on account of his extraordinary musical ability, was made leader of St. Anne's choir. In 1862, became Musical Director of All Saints Church, Worcester, Mass.; later of St. John's Church, of which he was junior warden. He was teacher of music in the schools of both Lowell and Worcester for many years and was well known as a composer of music. Easter Sunday, April 10, 1887, at 9 P. M., in the office of the Worcester Spy, where he was reporting the exercises of the day, he dropped dead, just as he was saying, "What a perfect Easter Day it has been!" He married Nancy Aiken, of Lowell, Aug. 6, 1844. Their seven children:
 1. Henry Aiken, born Mar. 7, 1845; graduated Trinity College, 1866, and Berkeley Divinity School, 1869; married Oct. 29, 1874, Mary Bull Slocum, of Newport, R. I. Their four children: Maud, born Nov. 23, 1875; Ruth, born Nov. 17, 1877; Mary Aiken, born Jan. 11, 1881; Dorothy, born June 30, 1887.

 3. Arthur Tenney, born Sept. 24, 1850.
 4. Elizabeth Buffum, born May 6, 1852; died Nov. 13, 1854.
 5. James Aiken, born May 6, 1852.
 6. Charles Hunt, born Feb. 4, 1858.
 7. Paul Huntington, born Feb. 19, 1863; died Dec., 1867.
4. Enoch B. Metcalf, born Dec. 14, 1823. Married Nancy Norton, of Lowell. Died about 1865. They had two daughters. Widow went West years ago.
5. Charles Hovey Metcalf, born April 22, 1837. Died Dec. 20, 1857.

SEVENTH GENERATION. ISAAC METCALF, sixth child of Peletiah Metcalf and Lydia Estey, was born Feb. 3, 1783, in Royalston, Mass., at the old place, "Under the Hill," now called West Royalston. He acquired some education and was a very successful teacher in Royalston and adjacent towns.

In 1810, he bought the farm north of Royalston Village, long known as the Metcalf farm, since as the Mosman farm; and Nov. 10, 1810, married Lucy Heywood, the daughter of Silas Heywood and Hannah Goddard. She was born July 10, 1797, and died childless June 29, 1820.

Isaac Metcalf married again, March 1, 1821, Anna Mayo Stevens Rich, widow of Charles Rich, of Warwick. She is supposed to have been his first love, he having proposed to her when a scholar of his some fifteen years before when he taught school in Warwick. She was the daughter of Wilder Stevens, of Warwick, and Elisabeth Mayo, of Roxbury, and was born March 1, 1787. He died in Boston, April 17, 1830. She died in Elyria, O., Jan. 2, 1866.

Charles Rich, son of Jacob Rich and Molly Kendall, was born July 30, 1777; married Anna Mayo Stevens, May 20, 1807; died Dec. 17, 1811, leaving three children:

1. Charles Wilder Rich, born April 2, 1808; died Jan. 28, 1888.
2. Almeda Rich, born Oct. 5, 1809.
3. Anna Elisabeth Rich, born Aug. 21, 1811; died Jan. 23, 1897.

Isaac Metcalf and Anna Mayo Stevens Rich had four children:

1. Isaac Stevens Metcalf, born Jan. 29, 1822; died Feb. 19, 1898.
2. Joseph Mayo Metcalf, born July 25, 1823; died Dec. 31, 1850.
3. Lucy Heywood Metcalf, born May 28, 1825; died Aug. 26, 1856.
4. Eliab Wight Metcalf, born April 18, 1827.

Charles Wilder Rich, born at Warwick, April 2, 1808, oldest child of Charles Rich and Anna Mayo Stevens, went with his mother to Royalston in 1821. Taught by his stepfather, attended Chesterfield Academy; taught school himself; traveled and taught school in Maine. After the death of his stepfather, settled in Maine, buying a farm in Milo, Piscataquis Co., on the Piscataquis River, 33 miles north of Bangor. The farm was bought of old Benjamin Sargeant, one of the original settlers in that region, and was a beautiful place, largely bottom-land, or, as they call it, "Intervale," with an old one-story frame house on the second bank. How well some of us remember that little, old, unpainted house, with its great, wide open fire-place, only two rooms below, and the wide, low-roofed attic above, where we slept. He married in Milo, Maine, March 11, 1847, Albina S. Kittredge, daughter of Russell Kittredge and Lucy Hart. She was born April 16, 1827. They removed to Elyria in 1865. He died in Elyria Jan. 28, 1888. They had children, all born at Milo, Maine:

1. Charles Metcalf Rich, born Feb. 8, 1848; Civil Engineer on various railroads. December 25, 1873, married Rosa Caroline Meloy, born Sept 23, 1848, daughter of William and Sophia Meloy. Now living at Grand Rapids, Mich. Their children:
 1. Charles Wilder Meloy Rich, born Aug. 9, 1884.
 2. Mary Wahneta Rich, born Dec. 16, 1895.
2. William Rich, born April 13, 1849; died Sept. 28, 1849.
3. Joseph Stevens Rich, born Dec. 10, 1850. Living in Duluth, Minn.
4. Mary Kittredge Rich, born Nov. 20, 1852; married David Burton Andrews, Sept. 2, 1873; died Dec. 24, 1880. One child, Susie Fay Andrews, born Feb. 14, 1876.
5. Anna Mayo Rich, born April 24, 1857; married Prof. John Leadingham, June 15, 1887. Living in Honolulu, where he is Professor in North Pacific Missionary Institute. Their children:
 1. Grace, born in Oberlin, July 1, 1889.
 2. Marjory, born in Oberlin, March 23, 1891.
 3. Gertrude, born in Oberlin, Dec. 5, 1892.
 4. Russell, born in Honolulu, July 6, 1895.
 5. John, Jr., born in Honolulu, Jan. 4, 1898.

6. George Wilder Rich, born Jan. 21, 1859; married, May 11, 1881, to Mary A. Prime, who was born Feb. 27, 1857, at Lockport, N. Y. Living in Elyria. Their children:
 1. Bessie Mayo, born Oct. 10, 1883.
 2. Frank Wilder, born Sept. 26, 1885; died June 26, 1894.

Almeda Rich, second child of Charles Rich and Anna Mayo Stevens, was born Oct. 5, 1809; married May 19, 1834, to James Madison Searles, of Boston, Mass. He was born Aug. 27, 1810, at Sutton, Mass. He died in Milo, Me., Nov. 30, 1844, leaving three children:

1. Lucy Almeda, born Aug. 1, 1837; died May 30, 1853.
2. James Rich Searles, born March 20, 1839; married Jan. 16, 1863, to Harriet A. Johnson, who was born Jan. 16, 1840, daughter of Dea. Johnson, of Brownville, Maine. Living in Brownville, Me. Their children:

Anna Elisabeth Rich, youngest child of Charles Rich and Anna Mayo Stevens, was born at Warwick, Mass., Aug.

27, 1811; went with her mother to Royalston in 1821, and to Boston in 1827. After the death of her step-father and her mother's removal to Maine, she taught school for many years—first with her older sister a private school in Boston; after her sister's marriage, in Bangor, Me., where she was a popular and successful teacher for some twelve years. In 1848, she became assistant principal of Westfield Academy, Westfield, N. Y. In 1851 she took charge of a young ladies' seminary in Racine, Wis. Sept. 28, 1853, married Elijah DeWitt, M. D., of Elyria, O., and resided in Elyria until her death, Jan. 23, 1897.

Isaac Stevens Metcalf, oldest son of Isaac EIGHTH GENERATION. Metcalf and Anna Mayo Stevens Rich, was born Jan. 29, 1822, at Royalston, Mass. At school in Boston, 1827 to 1831. With his half brother, Charles W. Rich, in April, 1831, to Milo, Me. Poverty and hardship. Bangor High School, 1839 to 1841, fitting for college under David Worcester and working for board. Taught country school winters; worked on the farm at Milo, summers. 1843, assistant teacher in Foxcroft Academy, and in winter term, teacher of Foxcroft Village School. Entered sophomore class in Bowdoin College in 1844. While in college, taught large schools at Six-mile Falls, Bangor, Turner High School, South Gardner, Topsham and Orono, three to six months of each year, but graduated with his class in 1847. Went directly after college commencement to surveys on the Vermont & Mass. R. R. Promoted at once, when found a college boy, the ablest axeman in the surveying party. Located the line from Grout's to Greenfield, laying out the Connecticut River bridge. After the completion of the Vt. & Mass., on the N. H. Central R. R., while the road was located and built from Manchester to Henniker.

Then made the survey from Henniker across to Newport and the Connecticut River, making up the published report of the route. The building of the road being stopped by lawsuit with other roads, spent a little time on the final location of the Bangor and Waterville Railroad, locating the bridge across the Kennebec River, with the thermometer 13° F. below zero at noon.

Went west in the spring of 1850, by stage over the Hoosac Tunnel Line to Troy, down the Hudson River to New York, thence west on the first train over the then opening Erie R. R., stopping at Westfield, N. Y., where his sister Anna Rich was teaching; thence by stage coach to Erie, Pa.; thence by steamboat to Cleveland and Detroit; thence by the very new, and then crude, Michigan Central R. R., across the State to Michigan City, its then terminus. By steam ferry to Chicago, then of some 30,000 inhabitants. On the same steamer came the first locomotive engine ever brought to Chicago, intended to run on a little strap rail road just beginning from Chicago out toward Elgin, perhaps the first railroad out of Chicago. From Chicago by canal to LaSalle; down the river to Naples, across by strap rail to Springfield, by stage to Alton, then to St. Louis; thence by steamer around to Cairo and Caledonia, where a survey was just commencing on the Illinois Central R. R. Thence back to Chester, Ill., and out across the country to Mt. Hawkins, in Perry Co.; and commenced preliminary surveys on the Illinois Central line from the Big Muddy River to where Centralia now is. Considerable experience of "fever and ague" soon followed. In the autumn, went to Jonesboro, Union Co., to meet the Chief Engineer, Col. R. B. Mason, and was put in charge of the location of the railroad from Cairo north. In the spring, fearing the climate, returned to New England, going on horseback, through Southern Illinois and Indiana to Cincinnati; thence by rail to Cleveland, Westfield, Niagara and home to Bangor, but stopping at Dunbarton, N. H., where he married.

In the autumn, being invited to take charge of the construction of the second division of the Illinois Central R. R., returned with his wife to Southern Illinois. Took charge and built the second division Illinois Central R. R., from Big Muddy River, including the bridge there and including Centralia and the hotel and shops there. Prided himself especially on the Little Muddy River bridge, a stone structure with ten feet openings through the spandrels. Had charge of all the money spent, as well as of the construction—expending over half a million dollars with very little assistance or advice from his chief, whom he saw only once a year. He would frequently start on horseback after dark to St. Louis, eighty miles away, returning before daylight the second day with twenty or thirty thousand dollars, which he would leave with his young wife until he was ready to pay it out. When the road was completed in 1855 he went to Chicago, and handed his books and vouchers to George B. McClellan, then finance clerk in the Chicago office of the railway company, afterwards General McClellan. The chief engineer gave him a letter to the president and directors of the road, saying that he had "done the most work with the least money" of any division engineer on the 700 miles of road. In the meantime he had invested in land and laid out the village at Du-Quoin, now an important station on the I. C. R. R., and commenced the coal mining there.

After more than a year spent in New England, settled in Elyria, O., Nov., 1856, and made his home there until his death.

In Elyria he held many public positions. He was elected Infirmary Director when the County Infirmary was first established. Was Township Trustee all through the war time and Colonel of the local Volunteer Militia; Justice of the Peace for many years; was long a member of the Board of Education and for a time its President; held the offices of Cemetery Trustee, County School Examiner; was Secretary of the County Agricultural Society. He was for many years clerk, secretary and treasurer of the First Congregational Church and Society, and was elected deacon for life. He was a director of the Savings Deposit Bank from its organization. He died in Elyria, Feb. 19, 1898, at No. 43 West Avenue, which had been his home since 1857.

Eliab Wight Metcalf, fourth and youngest child of Isaac Metcalf and Anna M. Stevens Rich, was born at Royalston, Mass., April 18, 1827. The family moved to Boston the same year, where his father was teaching a private school. His father died April 17, 1830. His mother moved the following spring, with her four small children, to Northern Maine, where her older son, Charles Wilder Rich, had bought a farm in Milo.

Eliab Wight was, as he said, "four years old aboard ship," on the voyage on the small coasting schooner between Boston and Bangor. His boyhood was passed amid the exposure, privations and hard work of poverty, upon a small farm in that frontier region. He had no advantages of education except the training of a well educated and most excellent Christian mother, and one term in Foxcroft Academy, and the influence of capable older brothers and sisters. Became a member of the Congregational Church in Milo when nine years old. Taught two schools in Milo in winter of 1844 and 1845. In April, 1845, just before his 18th birthday, he walked to Bangor, 33 miles, and became clerk and book-keeper in the store of Walter Brown & Son, dealers in general merchandise and lumber. From 1851 till October, 1865, in business for himself in Bangor,—lumber, ship chandlery, and ship building. During the Civil War went at five different times, at his own expense, in service of the Christian Commission.

After the war, in October, 1865, moved with his wife and five children to Elyria, O., which was already the home of his brothers Chas. W. Rich and Isaac S. Metcalf, and of his sister Mrs. Anna Rich DeWitt. Dealt in timber lands in Pennsylvania, Southern Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. Having lost a vessel burned by the English-built cruiser Shenandoah, spent twelve winters in Washington, advocating the theory (which he originated), that the forty-nine marine insurance companies, who claimed many millions of the Geneva Award, were entitled to nothing unless they could show actual loss above war premiums received. This theory was finally adopted by Congress, thus making it possible to pay from the Geneva Award for all the actual loss caused by all the Confederate cruisers for which the losers had received no indemnity, and also for about one-third of the proved losses by the payment of war premiums. As attorney in fact collected for other losers a large number of claims, besides that for his own ship. Has gathered an extensive collection of books and documents referring to the whole subject of the Treaty of Washington and the Geneva Award. Carried to successful issue in Supreme Court of United States a suit against the City of Watertown, Wis., involving a new and important constitutional question. In Supreme Court of Wisconsin, won a test suit confirming his own title to a part of the "Marathon County Lands," and thereby confirming also the title (without expense to them) of a large number of immigrants and others to the small farms on which they had settled.

Actively interested, both in Maine and Ohio, in temperance legislation. Drafted the local option bill, which under different names and forms has been before the Ohio Legislature for several years and is now advocated by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, in whose support and management he has been earnest and untiring. Trustee of Oberlin College since 1880.

Married, April 6, 1853, in Easthampton, Mass., to Eliza Maria Ely, born at North Mansfield, Conn., Dec. 9, 1828, daughter of Rev. William Ely and Harriet Whiting. She had taught in Philadelphia and was Principal of Ladies' Department at Williston Seminary, Easthampton. Their children :

STEVENS GENEALOGY.

Anna Mayo Stevens, who married Isaac Metcalf, of Royalston, was the fifth child of Wilder Stevens. Wilder Stevens was the fourth child of Nathaniel Stevens. Nathaniel Stevens was the oldest child of Simon Stevens, who was the youngest of three brothers, Joseph, Cyprian, and Simon, who came from London, England (though their origin was in Devonshire), a little before 1700. Joseph settled in Rutland, Cyprian in Hingham, and Simon in Lancaster, Mass.

Simon Stevens, of Lancaster, was a blacksmith, and distinguished himself by his strength and courage in the old Indian wars. His first wife's name was Gore, and they had 10 children. After her death, he married the widow Molly Martin, who had 10 children, and they had one more. Of Simon Stevens' children, two at least—Cyprian and Jonathan—settled in Plainfield, Conn.; one, named Joseph, in Petersham, Mass.

Nathaniel Stevens, oldest child of Simon Stevens, was born in 1712. He married Molly Martin, the daughter of his stepmother, and lived in Lancaster till 1761, and then settled in Warwick. He had nine children:
